And it blow the curls a frolicsome race, All over the happy, peach colored face, Till scolding and laughing she tied them in, Underher beau iful, dimpled chin.

And it blew a color, light as the bloom Of the pinkest fuchsia's tossing plume, All over the cheeks of the prettiest girl That ever imprisoned a romping curl, Or, tying her bonnet under her chin, Tied a young man's heart within.

Steeper and steeper grew the hill; Madder, merrier, chiller still The western wind blew down and played The wildest tricks with the little maid, As tying her bonnet under her chin She tied a young man's heart within.

Oh, western wind, do you think it was fair To play such tricks with her floating hair? To gladly, gleefully, do your best To pillow her against the young man's breast, Where he as gladly folded her in, And kissed her mouth and dimpled chin?

Oh, Ellery Vane, you little thought, An hour ago, when you besought This country lass to walk with you, After the sun has dried the dew. What perilous danger you'd be in As she tied her bonnet under her clin.
